Welcome to the madeinroath 2014 festival programme!

It's been an exciting year so far for us; the sun shone at Made in Spring, which was very welcome for the marchers who arrived from their RED SHOES MARCH from Merthyr to Roath as part of the day. During the Summer, madeinroath travelled to West Wales for Made in Drefelin, with a group of wonderful Roath based artists in tow, thanks very much to Rhod for their lovely welcome. This Autumn we are very excited to be part of Cardiff Contemporary with our Births, Deaths and Shuffles project. We'll be bringing you live updates from the Registrar at City Hall with a city-wide series of tap dancing and semaphore performances, and also offering free tap shoe conversion workshops and kits so you can transform that old pair of trainers you never wear into tap shoes.

2014 has seen the arrival of our new mobile project space Debbie, a former ice cream van who currently resides with our friends at Spit and Sawdust Skate Park and Art Space. Debbie will be hosting Roath's first ever Space Station, she can be found at various locations around the neighborhood for the festival week, check the listings for more information. This year's festival promises another inspirational and varied line-up, with lots of new projects in the pipe line, as well as the return of some old favourites from the last five years. As always madeinroath practices an ethos of inclusivity, endeavouring to accommodate the broadest possible range of submissions to the programme. Our aim is to do this whilst maintaining standards of excellence that reflect the flourishing contemporary art scene in Wales. 'Settlement, process, people and place' will be an artist-led participatory event, which attempts to place madeinroath within a critical context, whilst avoiding the confines of a traditional 'conference' format.

Don't forget to check out our new section, Everything Else/ Popeth Arall!

We would like to thank everyone who has given up their time so generously to help make this festival happen - madeinroath simply wouldn't happen without our team of volunteers, advisors, coordinators, our Board and the people of Roath. We are so grateful for the support. We would also like say a big thank you to all the artists, both resident and visiting, for their contribution to this year's festival. You'll find their work in domestic, commercial, public and sometimes overlooked spaces - it might be easily visible but often it might be happened upon when you least expect it. Look, listen and explore, and you will find art, in all its many different forms, all over Roath.

We hope you enjoy the adventure!

COAL TOWN
COFFEE ROASTERS

Kim's Coffee

This year, whilst becoming typically frenzied in our mission to put together the madeinroath festival programme, we've been aware that there's been someone missing. An unforgettable maelstrom of creative energy, ideas, suggestions, encouragement and kindness, who'd arrive at a madeinroath meeting and make everything seem possible, we miss Kim Fielding. We miss his ideas, his fun and the crazy spaces he'd suggest whilst grinning over a cup of thick black, bitter coffee, the kind you'd taste hours later, days even. Not easily forgotten, like Kim. And so, as an act of commemoration we've created a new blend of coffee, something we can all share.

Dear Kim, we raise a cup of black shit to you, and drink to you with all our love xxx

The Kim Fielding Coffee will be launched at this year's MiR at The Little House of Bosch and will be available throughout October from selected venues around Cardiff. With much gratitude to the lovely people at Coal Town Coffee who have been so supportive and generous with their expertise and time.

Births, Deaths & Shuffles

Over the city, people are waking. They are yawning, frowning, rising, they are stretching, moving, they are rubbing tiredness away. Over the city people are dressing, they are frying, they are toasting, pouring, brushing, they are buttoning, they are rushing. Over the city people are waving, checking for keys, waiting for buses, flicking through papers, they are logging on and sighing.

Over the city people are daydreaming. They are clicking, serving, talking, they are folding, they are lifting, counting, standing. Over the city people are stirring, they are making, writing, sharing, they are worrying, they are shitting. Over the city people are biting nails, they are eating, they are laughing, they are shopping, they are calling, leaning, wishing. Over the city people are travelling, they are resting, they are shivering, texting, holding, they are finding, walking, sitting, they are checking bank balances, forgetting.

Over the city people are settling, they are drinking, they are chatting, they are sheltering, they are tired, they are making love, they are moving, they are caring, they are thinking.

Over the city people are dozing, they are fighting, they are watching, they are crying, they are debating, they are retiring, they are sleeping. Over the city people are lonely, busy, happy, worried, carefree, careless, worn out, young, old; the city lives.

Viewed from afar this city is made up of the tiniest of lights. Sometimes there's a cluster of lights all shining together, sometimes a solitary light burns far away from company.

Each light that burns, burns awhile, it flickers, swaying, leaning to another or falling alone. Each burns as bright as it can, for a while. Part of the city, this city of lights.

Light goes on, light goes off.

Homer Sykes

Once a Year, Some Traditional British Customs

Homer Sykes visited Roath in May this year to begin a project with us, to photograph aspects of the festival. For made in spring he joined the Red Shoe March along route from Merthyr to Cardiff and witnessed our preparations for the event. We are thrilled to have Homer continue this personal documentation of madeinroath this October. The resulting photographs will become an exhibition in spring 2015.

Homer started documenting traditional British customs in the early 1970s while at college in London. The project took seven years, and resulted in his first book, 'Once a Year, Some Traditional British Customs', published by Gordon Fraser in 1977. His love and interest has always been in Britain, documenting ordinary everyday life, the stuff that makes our countries special. We are delighted to have an exhibition of prints from 'Once a Year' to be shown at St Martin in Roath Church on Albany Rd during the madeinroath festival. The images are engaging and joyful and have long been loved by us. The photographs for next year's exhibition will put madeinroath in a context with other annual celebrations derived from a community.

Mab Jones

I wasn't made in Roath but I choose to live here, amongst friends who might have been, in a house that was, and all my poems, now, are born here. I came to Roath because, to me, it seemed just the right mix of 'arty' and 'street', whatever those words mean, but by which I personally mean the plethora of poets and artists who reside here, combined with the chance to eat every type of world cuisine just over on City Road. And so of course madeinroath festival is an annual highlight for me, as it is for most that live here. I moved to the area 8 years ago, and have attended every madeinroath - last year I was Resident Blogger, too, and oh how the festival had grown! I could hardly keep up. This year, there will be a whole team of bloggers, ably managed by the lovely Christina Thatcher and you can keep up to date with goings on at www.madeinroath.com. Helen and Gail are once again at the helm, doing their jobs (plural) with the same passion and panache as when they first founded the thing (with another Helen and Fi) and have this year been joined by Becca. The open houses and studios, exhibitions and workshops, performances and readings, will undoubtedly be even more and many this year, and it's these three 'ladies who launch' who we have to thank.

I'm sure this will all be written about in The Actual History Museum of Roath, one day... But, until it is, I urge you to come to the launch, and to attend as many of these lovely, lively events as you can. You will see amazing things and you will meet marvellous people. Even if you weren't made in Roath, you can make some wonderful times here.

POOR QUEEN

As part of madeinroath 2014 Mab Jones' new book, Mine, Poor Queen, will be launched at Waterloo Tea House on October 21, along with fellow poet Johnny Giles and his Blackheath Books pamphlet Chalk Outlines. Other launches include Laugharne, London and Paris, but Roath is where she has chosen as her 'home' launch, and it is where her poems were written too.

plan your madeinroath week

With so many exciting and exceptional things going on this year, we thought that we'd give you some space to make some notes.

You can choose where to start, where to finish, and where to stop off in between! Visit Open Houses and Studios, as well as joining any of our many Walks and Wanders. 'ROADBLOCK' will be filled with people, art, music and food. Exhibitions and Artists Interventions can also be found throughout in gardens, pubs, shops, galleries, sheds, churches and front rooms. As usual, Workshops are free and open to everyone. The programme for Film, Theatre, Music and Spoken Word is exciting, extensive and running throughout the festival. Outside of Roath our 'Hand of Roath' listings are located in the city centre and Llandaff.

Make sure you don't miss a thing!

Outcasting: Fourth Wall Film Festival

St. Anne's Church, Croft Street CF24 4DY

Questions / Stuart Croft

Thurs 16th - Sat 18th Oct, 12noon - 6pm

UK / Duration 5m 24s loop / 2013

Stuart Croft - A white male in his late 50s sits in a classic documentary talking-head setting. A backdrop is behind him, recalling post-war American painting. The man is asked a series of questions, put to him by an off-screen interviewer with a US accent.

Outtakes from the Life of a Happy Man / Jonas Mekas

Mon 20th - Weds 22nd Oct, 12noon -

6pm

USA / Duration 1h 8m 16s / 2012

Jonas Mekas - As he looks back over his life he starts to talk, insisting that his life's work amounts to 'just images, some fragments of this world' that he will bring together for himself and a few friends. But as images of the people who brought joy into his life pass by, we realise that most of them are no longer alive. Mekas sees them again, but he is seeing them alone.

60 Natasha O'Connor

The Bottle Shop
4 Pen-Y-Lan Rd, CF24 3PF

Wed 15th - Wed 29th Oct, 11am-9pm (closed Mondays)

I have recently graduated from Cardiff Metropolitan University after studying a degree in Textiles. I specialise in digital art, paying particular attention to textures and urban patterns within the city. I have a great passion for the unseen beauty in and around the city of Cardiff, and enjoy focusing on the weathered and rusted features I find.

I would like to think that I capture an interesting and unique look on the unseen beauty that is in front of us everyday.

Chris is a 19 year old artist with a very special gift, who has the ability and aspiration to be a well known artist who can make a living from his work. Through his art, he has met celebrities and shared his drawings with them. Chris has traits of Asperger Syndrome which means he finds social situations awkward, but has an amazing eye for detail. He is an artist of exceptional talent.

A small haven of good food and friendly service in a laid back, relaxing and inviting setting. Nestled amongst the bay-fronted windows by Roath Park, Deli-Rouge offers quality produce accompanied by pleasant conversation and friendly faces. The deli counters display a range of local and continental cheeses, cooked meats and salamis, as well as olives, stuffed peppers and other antipasto and tapas ingredients. The shelves are stocked with a variety of quality produce, including jams, chutneys, coffees (ground to order), teas, wines and ales. There are also plenty of cakes, ice creams, puddings and chocolate to delight even the sweetest tooth, and freshly baked bread from a local baker. The breakfast menu covers everything from toast with homemade jam to Eggs Benedict to the Mega breakfast for the extra-hungry.

There is a substantial selection of lunch rolls and salads which are made fresh to order using a wide range of ingredients, and are served all day. Tapas are available from 1pm, with a choice of larger sharing dishes and individual portions, both hot and cold, with staff happy to discuss any special requirements, including vegetarian and gluten free options.

The deli holds regular evening events, and the staff are always willing to try to make your visit memorable for all the right reasons, whatever the occasion.

On Opening and Closing

Shaun James

Exploiting potential energies: like the tension of a rubber band or the inevitable drop of an arm under weight provides departure points for my work. I play with new processes as a means to both understand and expand them; leading me forward, creating tangents that evolve beyond their original motivation - shedding and absorbing material as the process unfolds.

Roath

Dafydd Williams

A collection of images taken in Roath that, using liquid photographic emulsion, will be printed and developed in the gallery space directly onto the walls. Roath is an experiment in the curating, printing and presentation of an exhibition.

Closing Time

Jon Pountney

Closing Time' is a photographic installation about the death of Wales' classic pubs. As a non-drinker I'm ambivalent about the business end of pubs, but I understand their role in the social fabric of Wales. When the last pub closes, what will we have lost?

Requiem Mass for Howard Gardens

Old CSAD Campus, Howard Gardens, CF24 0SP

Sun 19th Oct, 6.30pm - 7pm

Built in the 1960s to house Cardiff School of Art and Design, the Howard Gardens campus has been one of the main sources of Cardiff's burgeoning contemporary art scene. The site hosted its last ever student show this year and is scheduled to be flattened in the next few months. To mark its demise, MiR has organised a commemorative mass and invites all those people who share our sense of loss for the site that has contributed so much to Cardiff's cultural life, and also to the wider arts community. The short mass will be followed by an event at g39 which will include archival material gathered from Howard Gardens, documentary photography from ex CSAD student Julie Maxwell and a recital from the harpist Carwyn Tywyn.

Harpist Performance in memory of Howard Gardens

Carwyn Tywyn

Carwyn Tywyn is a well-established folk harpist in Wales, having been performing for over 20 years. Best known as a street performer, he has performed widely across the British Isles and was a featured harpist in Bruce Cardwell's seminal book "The Harp in Wales" (2013).

Documentary photographs of Life in Howard Gardens Art College from 1981-1985

Julie Maxwell

I used the medium of photography to capture my student days in art college at Howard Gardens in the early 1980's, and keep the memory alive. I find with the passing of time the photographs now prop up people's memories. One day the photographs will become historic and stand for themselves.

95 Rapper Sword Dancing Demonstration and Workshop

Albany Road Baptist Church, CF24 3NU

Sat 18th Oct, 11am to 5pm (drop in at any time)
We will introduce you to the noble, ancient and moderately dangerous art of dancing with swords. It is a fast traditional English dance whose origins lie in the mining villages of the north east of England and involves five people connected by short, two-handed, flexible swords (called rappers) forming a chain.

For adults and young people age 12+, under 16s must be accompanied by a parent/guardian. Please wear school shoes, leather soled shoes or similar. No trainers, as our stepping needs to be noisy!

(accessed via J Sherlock and Sons Garage)

12noon - 4pm daily (apart from special events - check website for details)

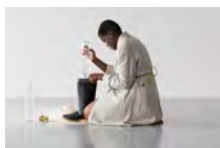

The Listening Space is a social artwork where madeinroath artists, volunteers and the general public come together to talk, listen, make and share. A port of call for tea's, coffee's and correspondence, where you can pick up programmes, maps, and other useful information.

Led by artist Dai Howell, The Listening Space is a festival hub, where you can catch up with the latest madeinroath gossip and updates, and experience Roath Radio and a selection of artists film shorts.

If you would like to contribute to Roath Radio drop off your sound recording or music with Dai anytime during the week.

Roath Radio

Roath radio will be running throughout the week of the festival. It will broadcast a selection of artists' sound work, local musicians, and missives from the festival itself. Updated through the week, you can contribute to the radio with your own recordings by emailing them to madeinroath@gmail.com or dropping them off at the Listening Space.

Vivian.C.Ezugha Sense of a Place

Vivan will respond to the people of Roath, recordings sounds, drawing and observing the movements of people as they travel to their different destinations. She will then take the information and remove it from its context by bringing it into a physical building where she will showcase her response to place.
